Absolute's Stink Bug Reduction Services

Stink Bugs: A Seasonal Pest Problem in Ohio

Stink bugs are rapidly becoming an alarming problem for home and business owners across the state of Ohio. Specifically, the Brown marmorated stink bug was first identified in Pennsylvania in 1996. Today, however, this non-native pest has spread to more than 20 neighboring states and has developed into a seasonal phenomenon.

Why Are Stink Bugs Infesting Homes?

Stink bugs seek to enter homes at the first sign of cooler weather as they are unable to survive the elements with out overwintering. Once inside, stink bugs may wander from room to room in search of food and water. Although they are harmless to humans occasionally stinkbugs will cause damage to household plants. Stink bugs are commonly known for their offensive odor that they secrete when threatened.

Stink Bug Reduction Service

Significantly reducing the number of stink bugs overwintering inside your home or property can be achieved through safe, preventative and targeted exterior treatments executed 3 times per year. With the Absolute Pest Control Stink Bug Reduction Service, treatments are performed in the spring and the fall when stink bugs are at their peak.

Benefits of Stink Bug Reduction Service:

- Exterior preventative treatments, 3 times per year
- 2 Fall services between August and November will control adult stink bug activity and reduce the instances of overwintering
- 1 Spring service between March and May will help to reduce stink bug populations before they breed
